Jean Gudenas, Medical University of South Carolina, USA

Stacey Frank, Tri County Technical College, USA

Melissa Hortman, MSC, USA

We are delighted to introduce IGI Global's new International Journal of Innovative Teaching and Learning in Higher Education, which seeks to disseminate research, experiences, and philosophies about innovation in regard to teaching and learning in higher education. The landscape of higher education is constantly changing, so should our teaching. We should be thoughtfully experimenting in our teaching and sharing our findings to help drive the field forward.

As new Editor-in-Chiefs to a new journal, we have an ambitious desire for IJITLHE to become the premier journal within the many overlapping subject areas. By targeting educators, administrators, researchers, technologists, and specialists, we hope to provide a forum for authors to communicate their research and studies. To us, IJITLHE provides a perfect opportunity for new and seasoned authors to publish in a journal aiming for significant impact in the industry. We have purposely kept a broad scope to encompass all fields of innovation within teaching and learning in higher education and we will publish all types of theoretical, qualitative, quantitative, and even experiences.

IJITLHE is served by a dedicated Editorial Review Board (ERB) that consists of scholars and experts from multiple disciplines around the world. We would like to thank our ERB and Associate Editors for their time peer-reviewing the first round of submissions to the journal. The ERB ranges from early career to retired faculty and we greatly appreciate that they volunteered their expertise and promote the mission of this journal.

With our first issue, we truly hope that it captures the interest of our readers and provides significant contributions to innovations in teaching and learning in higher education. Additionally, we hope to continue to evolve and refine the journal as we build a community to inspire innovative teaching. We welcome your thoughts and feedback, so please don't hesitate contacting any of us. Also, we encourage you to submit to our young journal and help us grow, which you can find more information through IGI Global's site: <http://www.igi-global.com/publish/contributor-resources/before-you-write/>.

Sincerely,
